What is Soap

Soap is a salt. An acid and a base react together and neutralize into the salt (or soap). The process is called saponification. Natural vegetable oils (palm and coconut) are mixed with sodium hydroxide (lye). Glycerin is produced by this union. Glycerin is natural humectants which attracts and holds moisture, making it excellent for skin care products. We also add other natural components, making our soaps good to your skin and to Mother Nature. It is 100 % Biodegradable

Discovery of Soap

In 1000 BC in Rome women rinsing their clothes at the base of a hill below where animal sacrifice had taken place, noticed their clothes coming clean as they came into contact with the clay oozing down the hill and into the water. They discovered that this substance was the rendered animal fat soaked down through the wood ashes and into the soil.

About Soap

Have you ever wondered how the soap that you use everyday was made? Where it was made and from what ingredients? This may not concern some, but for those of us who truly believe that the most natural ingredients are the healthiest for our bodies and our earth these are important considerations. Mankind alike has taken from nature for centuries, often returning pollutants to our earth. Our products are earth smart in that they are made naturally and are biodegradable. Soap making is a chemical process. This cannot be avoided. In order to have soap you must have a somewhat caustic reaction as in the days of our homesteading forefathers, who used potash lye to create their soap. We use the mildest form possible, blended with pure vegetable oils of palm and coconut. We add fragrant and or essential oils (oils extracted from plants and often used medicinally and in aroma therapy). FDA cosmetic grade colorants and natural pigments are used to achieve various designs. If aroma were not added to soap no one would use it as the smell is quite offensive. Glycerin is a naturally occurring process which happens during saponification (chemical process). Whether soap is made with animal or plant oils it will contain glycerin unless otherwise removed as in several commercial brands. We strive to provide a healthy attractive and affordable product which is made in Canada. Bath items make excellent gifts for so many occasions. Aroma therapy is also an integral part of our offerings. Ones keen sense of smell and its stimulating effect is quite amazing.

We know that your continued use of our soaps will be healthy for your body and our environment. We thank you for putting your faith in our 100% biodegradable natural glycerin CANADIAN HAND CRAFTED PRODUCT. Our soaps are available at several quality gift stores throughout Canada, Europe and via the internet. We accept VISA MASTER CARD , CHEQUE or CASH
